THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It now includes more than a quarter of a million items.

It includes:—

- (a) General works of reference, British and foreign.
- (b) Standard Works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including Commerce and Industry.
- (c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of Libraries (both General and Special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

The collection of the Library Association, which is deposited by the Association, is a valuable adjunct to this section.

- (d) A collection of upwards of 120,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Government of India.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of Trade Unionism and Industrial Democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) A collection of reproductions of historical MSS. illustrating the handwriting and formulæ of different periods, for the use of students in the History Department. Certain of these may be borrowed for home study.

(m) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison and others.

(n) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Library Association, the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(o) The Common Room Library is available for home reading by members.

(p) The W. M. Acworth Transport Collection, Rooms 36 and 37, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was formed out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(q) The Henry Hunt Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about Socialism and allied questions, Room 30. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson. A separate card catalogue of this department will be found with the collection.

(r) There is also a fairly large collection of standard economic works, in Japanese, got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

RULES FOR THE LIBRARY.

1.—The Library shall be opened gratuitously for the purpose of study and research to—

- (a) Students for the time being of the London School of Economics and Political Science;
- (b) Persons engaged in any branch of public administration in the United Kingdom or any other country;
- (c) Professors and Lecturers of any recognised University;
- (d) Such other persons as may from time to time be admitted by the Director, on the recommendation of any Public Officer, Professor, Lecturer, Teacher, Foreign Ambassador, Minister or Consul, Agent-General or other person of position.

2.—The Reading Room is open at 10.0 a.m. daily; except as provided in Rule 3, closing at the following times:—

During Term: Daily, except Saturdays, at 9 p.m.; and on Saturdays, at 1 p.m.

During Vacation: Daily, except Saturdays, at 6 p.m.; and on Saturdays, at 1 p.m.

3.—The Library is entirely closed on the following days:—On all Sundays; on the 1st January; on Good Friday and the five days next following; on the Saturday before Whit Monday and on Whit Monday; on the first fourteen days of August; on the 25th December and six days next following.

4.—The Reading Room may be closed at any time for not more than one day by order of the Trustees, provided that notice to that effect be posted up not less than one week previously in the Reading Room and in the Entrance Lobby.

5.—Readers may take the books they require for purposes of study from the shelves in the Reading Room and Gallery. They must not replace the books when done with, but must leave them on the table.

6.—Cloak-rooms and lockers are provided in the building, and readers are requested not to bring overcoats, hats, umbrellas, or other impedimenta into the Reading Room. Parcels may be left in charge of the Porter in the hall.

7.—No book, manuscript, or other property of the Library is, in any circumstances, to be taken out of the Reading Room by a reader.

8.—Silence is, as far as possible, to be preserved in the Reading Room.

9.—Anyone who shall wilfully injure the property of the Library in any way will be required to pay the cost of repairing or replacing the injured property, and may be debarred from further using the Library.

10.—Persons admitted to the Reading Room shall on their first visit sign their names in a book to be kept for that purpose, as evidence that they will conform to these Rules.

W. P. REEVES, Director.

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE with which the BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE is in intimate connection is a School of the University of London. Amongst the objects of the School are the following :—

(i) To provide for all classes and denominations, without any distinction whatsoever, opportunities and encouragement for pursuing a regular and liberal course of education of the highest grade and quality in the various branches of knowledge dealt with by the Institution, and especially those prescribed or required by the University of London from time to time.

(ii) To supply liberal courses of education specially adapted to the needs of persons who are, or who intend to be, engaged in any kind of administration, including the service of any government or local authority, railways, shipping, banking, currency, international trade, and any of the higher branches of Commerce and Industry, and also the profession of teaching any such subjects.

The lectures and classes of the School are arranged so that students can pursue a full University course, extending over not less than three years, in the subjects required for the B.Sc. and D.Sc. degrees in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science (including Commerce and Industry). Courses for a first degree in this faculty are so arranged that students who can attend in the evening only can meet the full requirements of the University. The courses at the School are also useful for other University Examinations, especially as regards Law, Economics, History, Geography, and Sociology.

Students of the School paying the LL.B. Composition Fee have access to the Law lectures not only of the School, but also of University and King's Colleges.

The lectures and classes of the School are also open to those who have not matriculated and cannot, for various reasons, pursue a full University course. Scientific training is provided for those engaged in (i) different branches of public administration, central and local, (ii) trade and commerce, (iii) railways, (iv) accounting, (v) library administration. Many of the courses are useful to candidates for the examinations of the Institute of Bankers, the Institute of Chartered Accountants, and the Society of Accountants, as well as to candidates for the Home, India, and Consular Civil Services, for which last a special course of study has been drawn up.

In addition to the courses of lectures comprised in the course of study definitely prescribed for students proceeding to a degree in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, which in the main are long courses extending throughout the session, there is always a certain number of short courses of lectures complete within each term.

In Lent Term, which this year begins on January 13th, and ends on March 19th, the following short courses of lectures will be given:—

Recent Blue Books on Social and Industrial Progress, two lectures by A. L. BOWLEY, M.A., Reader in Statistics in the University of London, on Thursdays, at 5 p.m., beginning 6th March. Fee, 3s. 6d. Free to students attending other lectures at the School.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It now includes more than a quarter of a million items.

It includes:—

- (a) General works of reference, British and foreign.
- (b) Standard Works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including Commerce and Industry.
- (c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of Libraries (both General and Special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

The collection of the Library Association, which is deposited by the Association, is a valuable adjunct to this section.

- (d) A collection of upwards of 120,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

- (e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

- (f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Government of India.

- (g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

- (h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

- (j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

- (k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of Trade Unionism and Industrial Democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) A collection of reproductions of historical MSS. illustrating the handwriting and formulæ of different periods, for the use of students in the History Department. Certain of these may be borrowed for home study.

(m) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison and others.

(n) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Library Association, the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(o) The Common Room Library is available for home reading by members.

(p) The W. M. Acworth Transport Collection, Rooms 36 and 37, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was formed out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(q) The Henry Hunt Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about Socialism and allied questions, Room 30. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson. A separate card catalogue of this department will be found with the collection.

(r) There is also a fairly large collection of standard economic works, in Japanese, got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

The additions to the Library from December 8th, 1912 to March 7th, 1913, were as under:—

A COLLECTION OF TOBACCO LITERATURE.

The recent additions to the British Library of Political Science include a collection of literature dealing with the tobacco trade, which will be of great value to any student of the tobacco industry. Some of the documents are rarely met with, several not being in the British Museum catalogue. There are nearly 400 volumes in all, comprising, amongst other works, sets of the "Cigar and Tobacco World" (1889-1908); "La Tabac" (1881-1903); "Tobacco" (1881-1912); "Tobacco" (New York, 1889-1908); and the "Tobacco Trade Review" (1867-1908). Of special economic interest are the price lists of several wholesale firms, dating back to 1857.

A curious little work is "Instruction pour les fumeurs, les priseurs, etc., indiquant l'art d'user du tabac sans danger pour la santé, avec propreté et peu de dépense," par le Capitaine Charles Dubois. It was published in 1858, and does not appear to be in the British Museum. Another interesting brochure is "Tabaciana: recueil interessant dédié aux tabacomanes et aux antagonistes du cigare de la pipe et de la tabatière," par Ana-Gramme Blismon, which was the pen-name of Simon Blocquel. It was published about 1857. A better known work is Lizars' "Practical observations on the use and abuse of Tobacco," containing some rather horrible-looking coloured plates, showing the tongue in various stages of mutilation, the result of tobacco smoking. In the collection also is a work by Carolus Caesar Antz, called "Tabaci historia," written in Latin and published in 1836. It has quite an extensive bibliography, and it also is not in the British Museum catalogue. Most of the volumes are well bound in a neat half-calf with gilt edges, and the appearance of the books is decidedly attractive.

There are several 18th century official and semi-official papers not often met with. "Reasons humbly offered for regulating the importation of Tobacco" was the petition of Bristol merchants in 1723 against the Scotch traders' fraudulent importations of tobacco without paying the duty thereon. There is also an explanation by these same traders of their duty payments, in a pamphlet entitled "Observations" (1723). A very important document is the "Report, with appendix, from the Committee of the House of Commons on frauds and abuses in the Customs," published in 1733. The inside of this volume is much the worse for wear, but an elaborate half-calf binding hides a multitude of infirmities. Equally valuable is the volume containing the "Minutes of evidence taken before a Committee of the House of Commons on the Snuff Duties, 1790." Several other volumes give statistics of tobacco imports, etc., 1785-1790, and last, but not the least important, the collection includes a set of the leaflets, now somewhat rare, issued by the Anti-Tobacco Society. Numerous other items are to be found in this collection, but the works selected for mention will give some idea as to its usefulness, including, as it does, the history of the commercial and industrial conditions of the tobacco trade for the last 200 years.

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE with which the BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE is in intimate connection is a School of the University of London. Amongst the objects of the School are the following :—

(i) To provide for all classes and denominations, without any distinction whatsoever, opportunities and encouragement for pursuing a regular and liberal course of education of the highest grade and quality in the various branches of knowledge dealt with by the Institution, and especially those prescribed or required by the University of London from time to time.

(ii) To supply liberal courses of education specially adapted to the needs of persons who are, or who intend to be, engaged in any kind of administration, including the service of any government or local authority, railways, shipping, banking, currency, international trade, and any of the higher branches of Commerce and Industry, and also the profession of teaching any such subjects.

The lectures and classes of the School are arranged so that students can pursue a full University course, extending over not less than three years, in the subjects required for the B.Sc. and D.Sc. degrees in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science (including Commerce and Industry). Courses for a first degree in this faculty are so arranged that students who can attend in the evening only can meet the full requirements of the University. The courses at the School are also useful for other University Examinations, especially as regards Law, Economics, History, Geography, and Sociology.

Students of the School paying the LL.B. Composition Fee have access to the Law lectures not only of the School, but also of University and King's Colleges.

The lectures and classes of the School are also open to those who have not matriculated and cannot, for various reasons, pursue a full University course. Scientific training is provided for those engaged in (i) different branches of public administration, central and local, (ii) trade and commerce, (iii) railways, (iv) accounting, (v) library administration. Many of the courses are useful to candidates for the examinations of the Institute of Bankers, the Institute of Chartered Accountants, and the Society of Accountants, as well as to candidates for the Home, India, and Consular Civil Services, for which last a special course of study has been drawn up.

In addition to the courses of lectures comprised in the course of study definitely prescribed for students proceeding to a degree in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, which in the main are long courses extending throughout the session, there is always a certain number of short courses of lectures complete within each term.

In the Summer Term, which this year begins on April 23rd, and ends on June 30th, the following short courses of lectures will be given :—

The University has arranged for the delivery of a course of six advanced lectures in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, on "The General Conception of Property in Economic Theory," by Dr. RICHARD T. THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It now includes more than a quarter of a million items.

It includes:—

- (a) General works of reference, British and foreign.
- (b) Standard Works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including Commerce and Industry.
- (c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of Libraries (both General and Special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

The collection of the Library Association, which is deposited by the Association, is a valuable adjunct to this section.

- (d) A collection of upwards of 120,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

- (e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

- (f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Government of India.

- (g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

- (h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

- (j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

- (k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of Trade Unionism and Industrial Democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) A collection of reproductions of historical MSS. illustrating the handwriting and formulæ of different periods, for the use of students in the History Department. Certain of these may be borrowed for home study.

(m) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison and others.

(n) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Library Association, the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(o) The Common Room Library is available for home reading by members.

(p) The W. M. Acworth Transport Collection, Rooms 36 and 37, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was formed out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(q) The Henry Hunt Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about Socialism and allied questions, Room 30. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson. A separate card catalogue of this department will be found with the collection.

(r) There is also a fairly large collection of standard economic works, in Japanese, got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

The additions to the Library from March 8th to May 24th,
1913, were as under:—

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF

JOHN ELLIOT CAIRNES (1823-1875).

[John Elliot Cairnes was born at Castle Bellingham, Ireland, on 26th December, 1823. As in the case of Oliver Goldsmith, and others, his tutors expressed the opinion that he was a dull boy and unfit for college. As a result he spent three years at his father's house, and under the influence of a young man named La Bart developed a tendency towards Calvinism. Eventually, however, he graduated as B.A. in 1848, and M.A. in 1854, and in 1856 won the Whately professorship of political economy at Dublin, holding it for five years. In 1859 he was appointed Professor of Political Economy in Queen's College, Galway, and in 1866 obtained a similar appointment in University College, London. The University of Dublin conferred the honorary degree of LL.D. upon him in 1874, but he was too ill to present himself to receive it. Cairnes, at the time of his death, was undoubtedly one of the leading economists. He died on 8th July, 1875, after a long illness, in his 52nd year. Probably his best known work is "The Slave Power," a very powerful work, issued in 1862 in support of the cause of the Northern States of America.]

In the list given below the British Museum press mark is given to those works which are in the catalogue of that institution, and those marked with an asterisk (*) are to be found in the British Library of Political Science.]

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE with which the BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE is in intimate connection is a School of the University of London. Amongst the objects of the School are the following :—

(i) To provide for all classes and denominations, without any distinction whatsoever, opportunities and encouragement for pursuing a regular and liberal course of education of the highest grade and quality in the various branches of knowledge dealt with by the Institution, and especially those prescribed or required by the University of London from time to time.

(ii) To supply liberal courses of education specially adapted to the needs of persons who are, or who intend to be, engaged in any kind of administration, including the service of any government or local authority, railways, shipping, banking, currency, international trade, and any of the higher branches of Commerce and Industry, and also the profession of teaching any such subjects.

The lectures and classes of the School are arranged so that students can pursue a full University course, extending over not less than three years, in the subjects required for the B.Sc. and D.Sc. degrees in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science (including Commerce and Industry). Courses for a first degree in this faculty are so arranged that students who can attend in the evening only can meet the full requirements of the University. The courses at the School are also useful for other University Examinations, especially as regards Law, Economics, History, Geography, and Sociology.

Students of the School paying the LL.B. Composition Fee have access to the Law lectures not only of the School, but also of University and King's Colleges.

The lectures and classes of the School are also open to those who have not matriculated and cannot, for various reasons, pursue a full University course. Scientific training is provided for those engaged in (i) different branches of public administration, central and local, (ii) trade and commerce, (iii) railways, (iv) accounting, (v) library administration. Many of the courses are useful to candidates for the examinations of the Institute of Bankers, the Institute of Chartered Accountants, and the Society of Accountants, as well as to candidates for the Home, India, and Consular Civil Services, for which last a special course of study has been drawn up.

In addition to the courses of lectures comprised in the course of study definitely prescribed for students proceeding to a degree in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, which in the main are long courses extending throughout the session, there is always a certain number of short courses of lectures complete within each term.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It now includes more than a quarter of a million items.

It includes:—

- (a) General works of reference, British and foreign.
- (b) Standard Works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including Commerce and Industry.
- (c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of Libraries (both General and Special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

The collection of the Library Association, which is deposited by the Association, is a valuable adjunct to this section.

- (d) A collection of upwards of 120,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

- (e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

- (f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Government of India.

- (g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

- (h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

- (j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

- (k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of Trade Unionism and Industrial Democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) A collection of reproductions of historical MSS. illustrating the handwriting and formulæ of different periods, for the use of students in the History Department. Certain of these may be borrowed for home study.

(m) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison and others.

(n) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Library Association, the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(o) The Common Room Library is available for home reading by members.

(p) The W. M. Acworth Transport Collection, Rooms 36 to 38, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was formed out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(q) The Henry Hunt Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about Socialism and allied questions, Room 30. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson. A separate card catalogue of this department will be found with the collection.

(r) There is also a fairly large collection of standard economic works, in Japanese, got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

The additions to the Library from June 8th to Sept. 30th,
1913, were as under:—

SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHIES, No. 4.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE CHANNEL TUNNEL.

Compiled by DORIS M. WEBB, Student-Assistant in the Library.

[A Channel Tunnel was first proposed in 1802 by a French mining engineer and was regarded favourably by Napoleon. In 1856 J. A. Thomé de Gamond submitted to the French Emperor plans which had taken 20 years of study to mature. In 1867 he exhibited modified plans in the Universal Exhibition, and he joined forces with William Lowe, of Wrexham, who was also working at the idea of a tunnel. Their plans were adopted by an international committee, and a committee of the French Ministry of Public Works reported favourably upon the project, which was stopped by the outbreak of the Franco-German war. In 1872 the British Government intimated to the French Government that it had no objection in principle to the tunnel, and in 1874 a joint commission of the two Governments was appointed to arrange details. In 1875 the Channel Tunnel Company obtained powers to undertake preliminary works at St. Margaret's Bay, but owing to opposition companies and lack of means it did very little, and its powers expired in 1880. Other companies appeared in the field, but the decision of the joint Select Committee of the Lords and Commons, that it was "inexpedient that parliamentary sanction should be given to a submarine communication between France and England," put a stop to the matter for a time, and the Government in 1882 interfered with the operations already in progress, which included a driftway 7ft. in diameter for about 2,300 yards eastwards under the sea at Shakespeare's Cliff. In recent years the subject has again been much discussed and a Bill to make a tunnel was promoted in 1907, but it was opposed by the Government and withdrawn.]

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE with which the BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE is in intimate connection is a School of the University of London. Amongst the objects of the School are the following :—

(i) To provide for all classes and denominations, without any distinction whatsoever, opportunities and encouragement for pursuing a regular and liberal course of education of the highest grade and quality in the various branches of knowledge dealt with by the Institution, and especially those prescribed or required by the University of London from time to time.

(ii) To supply liberal courses of education specially adapted to the needs of persons who are, or who intend to be, engaged in any kind of administration, including the service of any government or local authority, railways, shipping, banking, currency, international trade, and any of the higher branches of Commerce and Industry, and also the profession of teaching any such subjects.

The lectures and classes of the School are arranged so that students can pursue a full University course, extending over not less than three years, in the subjects required for the B.Sc. and D.Sc. degrees in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science (including Commerce and Industry). Courses for a first degree in this faculty are so arranged that students who can attend in the evening only can meet the full requirements of the University. The courses at the School are also useful for other University Examinations, especially as regards Law, Economics, History, Geography, and Sociology.

Students of the School paying the LL.B. Composition Fee have access to the Law lectures not only of the School, but also of University and King's Colleges.

The lectures and classes of the School are also open to those who have not matriculated and cannot, for various reasons, pursue a full University course. Scientific training is provided for those engaged in (i) different branches of public administration, central and local, (ii) trade and commerce, (iii) railways, (iv) accounting, (v) library administration. Many of the courses are useful to candidates for the examinations of the Institute of Bankers, the Institute of Chartered Accountants, and the Society of Accountants, as well as to candidates for the Home, India, and Consular Civil Services, for which last a special course of study has been drawn up.

In addition to the courses of lectures comprised in the course of study definitely prescribed for students proceeding to a degree in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, which in the main are long courses extending throughout the session, there is always a certain number of short courses of lectures complete within each term.

In Michaelmas Term, which this year begins on October 6th, and ends on December 19th, the following Public Lectures will be given :—

UNIVERSITY LECTURES.

The Influence of Religious Conceptions on the Historical Development of Economic Doctrine and Theories, a course of five lectures by ARCHDEACON CUNNINGHAM, on Mondays, at 8 p.m., in Michaelmas Term, beginning 13th October.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard Works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including Commerce and Industry.

The collection of the Library Association, which is deposited by the Association, is a valuable adjunct to this section.

(d) A collection of upwards of 160,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Government of India.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of Trade Unionism and Industrial Democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) A collection of reproductions of historical MSS. illustrating the handwriting and formulæ of different periods, for the use of students in the History Department. Certain of these may be borrowed for home study.

(m) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison and others.

(n) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Library Association, the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(o) The Common Room Library is available for home reading by members.

(p) The W. M. Acworth Transport Collection, Rooms 36 to 38, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was formed out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(q) The Henry Hunt Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about Socialism and allied questions, Room 30. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson. A separate card catalogue of this department will be found with the collection.

(r) There is also a fairly large collection of standard economic works, in Japanese, got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

The additions to the Library from Oct. 1st to Dec. 24th, 1913, were as under:—

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE with which the BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE is in intimate connection is a School of the University of London. Amongst the objects of the School are the following :—

(i) To provide for all classes and denominations, without any distinction whatsoever, opportunities and encouragement for pursuing a regular and liberal course of education of the highest grade and quality in the various branches of knowledge dealt with by the Institution, and especially those prescribed or required by the University of London from time to time.

(ii) To supply liberal courses of education specially adapted to the needs of persons who are, or who intend to be, engaged in any kind of administration, including the service of any government or local authority, railways, shipping, banking, currency, international trade, and any of the higher branches of Commerce and Industry, and also the profession of teaching any such subjects.

The lectures and classes of the School are arranged so that students can pursue a full University course, extending over not less than three years, in the subjects required for the B.Sc. and D.Sc. degrees in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science (including Commerce and Industry). Courses for a first degree in this faculty are so arranged that students who can attend in the evening only can meet the full requirements of the University. The courses at the School are also useful for other University Examinations, especially as regards Law, Economics, History, Geography, and Sociology.

Students of the School paying the LL.B. Composition Fee have access to the Law lectures not only of the School, but also of University and King's Colleges.

The lectures and classes of the School are also open to those who have not matriculated and cannot, for various reasons, pursue a full University course. Scientific training is provided for those engaged in (i) different branches of public administration, central and local, (ii) trade and commerce, (iii) railways, (iv) accounting, (v) library administration. Many of the courses are useful to candidates for the examinations of the Institute of Bankers, the Institute of Chartered Accountants, and the Society of Accountants, as well as to candidates for the Home, India, and Consular Civil Services, for which last a special course of study has been drawn up.

In addition to the courses of lectures comprised in the course of study definitely prescribed for students proceeding to a degree in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, which in the main are long courses extending throughout the session, there is always a certain number of short courses of lectures complete within each term.

In Lent Term, which this year begins on January 15th, and ends on March 25th, the following Public Lectures will be given :—

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises some 300,000 items, including:—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard Works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including Commerce and Industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of Libraries (both General and Special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

The collection of the Library Association, which is deposited by the Association, is a valuable adjunct to this section.

(d) A collection of upwards of 160,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Government of India.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of Trade Unionism and Industrial Democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) A collection of reproductions of historical MSS. illustrating the handwriting and formulæ of different periods, for the use of students in the History Department. Certain of these may be borrowed for home study.

(m) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(n) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Library Association, the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(o) The Common Room Library is available for home reading by members.

(p) The Acworth Transport Collection, Rooms 36 to 38, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was formed out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(q) The Henry Hunt Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about Socialism and allied questions, Room 30. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson. A separate card catalogue of this department will be found with the collection.

(r) There is also a fairly large collection of standard economic works, in Japanese, got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

The additions to the Library from Jan. 1st to Mar. 21st,
1914, were as under:—

IMPORTANT DONATIONS.

Special mention must be made of the donations received from the Carnegie Institution, Washington; from the Metropolitan Water Board; and jointly from Mr. Frederic Keeling, the International Association for Labour Legislation and the Committee on Wage Earning Children. The British Library of Political Science has been placed upon the "free list" of the Carnegie Institution and is to receive the whole of its publications issued in future. Those already received contain valuable monographs, elaborately prepared, on many topics—anthropology, geography, geology, international law, economics, history, bibliography, etc. From the Metropolitan Water Board the library has received a file of the "Times" from 1846. Until this donation arrived, the earliest number in the library was September, 1878, and a serious gap has thus been filled. The other donation mentioned is practically unique. It consists of the whole of the original materials gathered during recent years for the purposes of Mr. Keeling's newly published work on child labour. Included is a set of the regulations of the whole of the official authorities in the United Kingdom concerning the labour of children. It is hardly likely that a similar collection exists elsewhere. An endeavour will be made to keep this collection of material up-to-date, and thus perpetuate its value to students of the subject.

SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHIES, No. 6.

HUGH CHAMBERLEN, THE ELDER, Physician and Economist.

Hugh Chamberlen was born in Blackfriars between 1630 and 1634, and became physician in ordinary to the King in 1673. His fame as an economist rests on the scheme he proposed for the formation of a land bank. The scheme was violently attacked, and Chamberlen issued no less than 45 pamphlets in its defence. A House of Commons committee reported that the plan "was practicable and would tend to the benefit of the nation." However, the report lay unnoticed on the table. With the collapse of the scheme its author was compelled to fly the country, but in 1700 he was advocating his land bank scheme before the Parliament of Scotland. His ablest pamphlet is the one issued in 1702 advocating the Union of England and Scotland. The election of representative peers and compulsory education were included in his policy; so he was undoubtedly far in advance of his time. In the medical world he is best remembered in connection with the invention of the midwifery forceps, the secret of which poverty apparently compelled Chamberlen to divulge to the Dutch surgeon, Hendrik van Roonhuisen. The date of Chamberlen's death is not known, but it was after November, 1720.

The British Library of Political Science does not possess any of Hugh Chamberlen's writings, and would gladly welcome any as a gift to the library. In the following list the British Museum shelf mark is added to the titles of works represented in the catalogue of that institution.

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE with which the BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE is in intimate connection is a School of the University of London. Amongst the objects of the School are the following :—

(i) To provide for all classes and denominations, without any distinction whatsoever, opportunities and encouragement for pursuing a regular and liberal course of education of the highest grade and quality in the various branches of knowledge dealt with by the Institution, and especially those prescribed or required by the University of London from time to time.

(ii) To supply liberal courses of education specially adapted to the needs of persons who are, or who intend to be, engaged in any kind of administration, including the service of any government or local authority, railways, shipping, banking, currency, international trade, and any of the higher branches of Commerce and Industry, and also the profession of teaching any such subjects.

The lectures and classes of the School are arranged so that students can pursue a full University course, extending over not less than three years, in the subjects required for the B.Sc. and D.Sc. degrees in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science (including Commerce and Industry). Courses for a first degree in this faculty are so arranged that students who can attend in the evening only can meet the full requirements of the University. The courses at the School are also useful for other University Examinations, especially as regards Law, Economics, History, Geography, and Sociology.

Students of the School paying the LL.B. Composition Fee have access to the Law lectures not only of the School, but also of University and King's Colleges.

The lectures and classes of the School are also open to those who have not matriculated and cannot, for various reasons, pursue a full University course. Scientific training is provided for those engaged in (i) different branches of public administration, central and local, (ii) trade and commerce, (iii) railways, (iv) accounting, (v) library administration. Many of the courses are useful to candidates for the examinations of the Institute of Bankers, the Institute of Chartered Accountants, and the Society of Accountants, as well as to candidates for the Home, India, and Consular Civil Services, for which last a special course of study has been drawn up.

In addition to the courses of lectures comprised in the course of study definitely prescribed for students proceeding to a degree in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, which in the main are long courses extending throughout the session, there is always a certain number of short courses of lectures complete within each term.

In Summer Term, which this year begins on April 27th, and ends on May 29th, the following Public Lectures will be given :—

UNIVERSITY LECTURES.

The Measurement of Social Phenomena, a course of five lectures by Dr. BOWLEY, on Mondays, at 5 p.m., beginning 27th April.

These lectures are specially arranged by the University in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science for advanced students. Open to the public without fee.

INAUGURAL LECTURE.

The Growth and Influence of Political Science in America, by Mr. GRAHAM WALLAS, on Thursday, 30th April, at 8 p.m. Open to the public without fee.

RATAN TATA FOUNDATION.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises some 300,000 items, including:—

- (a) General works of reference, British and foreign.
- (b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.
- (c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of Libraries (both General and Special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

The collection of the Library Association, which is deposited by the Association, is a valuable adjunct to this section.

- (d) A collection of upwards of 160,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

- (e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

- (f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Government of India.

- (g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

- (h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

- (j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

- (k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of Trade Unionism and Industrial Democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) A collection of reproductions of historical MSS. illustrating the handwriting and formulæ of different periods, for the use of students in the History Department. Certain of these may be borrowed for home study.

(m) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(n) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Library Association, the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(o) The Common Room Library is available for home reading by members.

(p) The Acworth Transport Collection, Rooms 36 to 38, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was formed out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(q) The Henry Hunt Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about Socialism and allied questions, Room 30. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson. A separate card catalogue of this department will be found with the collection.

(r) There is also a fairly large collection of standard economic works, in Japanese, got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

The additions to the Library from 21st March to 30th June,
1914, were as under:—

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE with which the BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE is in intimate connection is a School of the University of London. Amongst the objects of the School are the following :—

(i) To provide for all classes and denominations, without any distinction whatsoever, opportunities and encouragement for pursuing a regular and liberal course of education of the highest grade and quality in the various branches of knowledge dealt with by the Institution, and especially those prescribed or required by the University of London from time to time.

(ii) To supply liberal courses of education specially adapted to the needs of persons who are, or who intend to be, engaged in any kind of administration, including the service of any government or local authority, railways, shipping, banking, currency, international trade, and any of the higher branches of Commerce and Industry, and also the profession of teaching any such subjects.

The lectures and classes of the School are arranged so that students can pursue a full University course, extending over not less than three years, in the subjects required for the B.Sc. and D.Sc. degrees in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science (including Commerce and Industry). Courses for a first degree in this faculty are so arranged that students who can attend in the evening only can meet the full requirements of the University. The courses at the School are also useful for other University Examinations, especially as regards Law, Economics, History, Geography, and Sociology.

Students of the School paying the LL.B. Composition Fee have access to the Law lectures not only of the School, but also of University and King's Colleges.

The lectures and classes of the School are also open to those who have not matriculated and cannot, for various reasons, pursue a full University course. Scientific training is provided for those engaged in (i) different branches of public administration, central and local, (ii) trade and commerce, (iii) railways, (iv) accounting, (v) library administration. Many of the courses are useful to candidates for the examinations of the Institute of Bankers, the Institute of Chartered Accountants, and the Society of Accountants, as well as to candidates for the Home, India, and Consular Civil Services, for which last a special course of study has been drawn up.

In addition to the courses of lectures comprised in the course of study definitely prescribed for students proceeding to a degree in the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, which in the main are long courses extending throughout the session, there is always a certain number of short courses of lectures complete within each term.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

THE last issue of this BULLETIN was that for July, 1914. The urgent need for economizing after the outbreak of war rendered it desirable to suspend publication until more normal times. During the interval the Library has grown considerably, no less than 200,000 documents having been received during the last five years. It is intended that the BULLETIN shall be regularly issued in future at intervals of three months. Each number will contain a select bibliography of some topical subject and an annotated list of some of the more important additions to the Library. Both these sections should appeal to librarians and students of social and economic subjects throughout the world, and it is very much hoped that as many as possible will become subscribers to the magazine, which costs a considerable sum to produce. Particular attention is called to the list of duplicates available for exchange. Many important documents, some of which are out of print, or are unobtainable through the ordinary channels, are offered, and librarians and others will find the exchange system mutually advantageous.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises some 450,000 items, including :—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of Libraries (both General and Special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

The collection of the Library Association, which is deposited by the Association, is a valuable adjunct to this section.

(d) A collection of upwards of 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Government of India.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of Trade Unionism and Industrial Democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Library Association, the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Common Room, Sociological Society and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth Transport Collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was formed out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Henry Hunt Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about Socialism and allied questions, Room 30. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson. A separate card catalogue of this department will be found with the collection.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of standard economic works in Japanese, got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises some 490,000 items, including :—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of Libraries (both General and Special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

(d) A collection of upwards of 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Common Room, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises some 490,000 items, including :—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of Libraries (both General and Special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

(d) A collection of upwards of 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British Parliamentary Publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of Foreign Government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign Governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a Library of Deposit for Congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the Governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British Colonies and Dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag since 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of State Papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library a complete set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Mr. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, and the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Common Room, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises some 500,000 items, including :—

- (a) General works of reference, British and foreign.
- (b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.
- (c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.
- (d) A collection of some 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.
- (e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.
- (f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.
- (g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.
- (h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.
- (j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country from the seventeenth century.

SPECIAL DONATIONS.

Mr. Thomas Shore, who has frequently presented items in the past, has now handed over to the library the whole of his collection, which numbers some thousands of books and pamphlets, mainly on economic and social subjects. The library is to retain for its own use such works in the collection as it needs, and in this way it will become the possessor of about 4,000 books and pamphlets not previously on its shelves. Mr. Shore has always taken a great interest in the library of the London School of Economics, and his kindness in adding to it such a substantial collection is very warmly appreciated.

Through the kind offices of Mr. Gustav Spiller there has been received on deposit the World Conferences Library, an important collection of material bearing on inter-racial problems, containing 634 books and periodicals.

The library is also most fortunate in having been selected as the home of the Edward Fry (memorial) Library of works on international law. The trustees of the memorial have received a substantial sum of money from the family of the late Lord Justice Fry, £600 of which has been allocated to the purchase of the works on international law in the library of the late Professor Oppenheim, a recognized authority and writer on the subject. About 1,200 volumes are comprised in this purchase, and these, with the works from the late Sir Edward Fry's collection, in addition to the number already in the library of the London School of Economics on international law, will at once make the Edward Fry Library a large and valuable one. The interest on the balance of the capital sum will be devoted to keeping this department up to date and in good order, so that eventually it will probably be the most important accumulation on international law in existence.

A collection of Russian paper money has been presented to the general library by Mr. T. Shaw, M.P., a member of the recent labour delegation to Moscow. There are twelve notes in all, including Bolshevik notes for 2, 3, 10, 30, 50, 100, 250, 500, and 1,000 roubles, and a Kolchak note for three kopeks, the size of a postage stamp. The intrinsic value of these notes is, of course, small, but with the numerous other specimens of paper money in the library they will form an interesting study for students of finance in years to come.

NOTES ON THE INDEXES IN THE LIBRARY.

The indexes in the library are a special feature, and as these indexes are arranged on somewhat different plans, in order to meet the requirements of special departments, the following information may be useful:—

The indexes to English local government publications, and Canadian and Australian official papers, are kept in the gallery of the main reading room. The entries in all these indexes are arranged alphabetically under the names of the subjects dealt with. The index to the Canadian and Australian official papers is confined to material on trade and transport. The index to the local government publications includes all matter likely to be of more than local interest, whatever the subject.

The Africa index is arranged alphabetically under the main subjects, each of which is immediately followed by sub-divisions of the subject. This index includes all references and figures of importance in English parliamentary papers, since the early part of the 19th century, referring to Africa, whether the paper specifically deals with Africa or not. This index is also kept in the gallery, as well as the index to charts and diagrams which have appeared in the parliamentary papers. This latter index is arranged in classified order of the subjects illustrated, according to the library's scheme of classification. The index to maps which have been published in parliamentary papers is in the geography department, and the entries are arranged in geographical areas according to the Dewey decimal classification. The special subject index to the geography department is arranged, generally, alphabetically, under the country referred to, sub-divided again by areas and topics. Specific commodities are arranged under the names of the commodities. For instance, Minerals in Russia would be arranged under Russia, sub-heading Minerals, but Platinum in Russia would be arranged under Platinum, sub-heading Russia, it being inferred that it is more advantageous to have all the literature on a specific topic together, than to have to refer to various countries in turn. Cross references of course are given from country to topic, and vice versa.

The general subject index to periodical and similar publications is arranged alphabetically under subjects, with country subdivisions.

The index to the Acworth collection on transport is arranged in classified order. There is an alphabetical index to authors and one to subjects. For instance, in the latter, under the heading Russia, will be found references to all the headings in the classification under which information relating to Russia appears. Specific references are given also to particular railways, rivers, canals, bridges, etc.

References to economic, political and social matters are included in the subject index to periodical literature.

Matter relating to transport, whether located in the geography department or in periodicals of any description, is put in the index to the Acworth collection. Similarly, all geographical references, no matter in what publications they appear, are put in the geography department, whether the material is located in that department or not.

All separate books (not pamphlets or periodical articles) are included in the general author catalogue in the main reading room, as well as in the general index of the department in which they are located.

Periodicals received in the library which are indexed in the Subject index to periodicals issued by the Library Association, or in Wilson's Reader's guide and Reader's guide supplement, are not indexed in the library, and readers should consult these indexes also.

Files of the following periodicals in the library (among others) have been indexed, and current issues of these are dealt with immediately they are received:

LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE
(UNIVERSITY OF LONDON).

DUNFORD HOUSE.

DUNFORD HOUSE, formerly the residence of Richard Cobden, has been given by his daughter Mrs. Cobden Unwin and Mr. Unwin to the London School of Economics and Political Science, as a memorial to Richard Cobden and his life-long efforts to promote free trade, peace and goodwill among nations, and to serve as a country house for rest, study and research, and for educational and other conferences.

It is now available for

1. The holding of conferences, vacation schools and reading parties organised by educational and other associations.

2. Visits by the staff or students of the School, coming either singly or in reading or holiday parties.
3. Visits by other visitors approved by the School authorities, including particularly teachers and students of other London Colleges or other Universities.

The house was built by Richard Cobden about 1852 and stands on the site of the farmhouse where he was born. It is situated about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south of Midhurst and 55 miles from London. It stands on rising ground, close to the foot of the South Downs, in one of the most beautiful parts of Sussex. It is surrounded by an estate of 150 acres, including gardens, meadowland, woodland, and a small trout stream. The neighbouring country lends itself particularly to the undertaking of field studies in geography, geology, and similar subjects. Rooms are set aside for study and a library of economic and other works is being collected. It is proposed from time to time to arrange for addresses by well known lecturers.

There are facilities for tennis, hockey and other games, and the golf course in Cowdray Park is accessible to visitors at Dunford.

The house can accommodate from 30 to 35 visitors in rooms with one, two, or more beds. The terms are fixed provisionally as follows :

During School Vacations.

	Per week				Per day			Week end
In single rooms	3	3	0 ...	10	6	...	20/-
In rooms with 2 beds	2	11	0 ...	8	6	...	16/-
In rooms with 3 or more beds	...	2	8	0 ...	8	0	...	15/-

During School Terms.

	Per week				Per day			Weel. end
In single rooms	3	0	0 ...	10	0	...	18/-
In rooms with 2 beds	2	8	0 ...	8	0	...	14/-
In rooms with 3 or more beds	2	5	0 ...	7	6	...	13/-

The week-end charge covers from Saturday (before tea) to Monday (after breakfast). Special terms will be arranged on application by persons organising conferences or other large parties.

Midhurst can be reached either by the London, Brighton and South Coast (Victoria or London Bridge) viâ Pulborough, or by the London and South Western Railway (Waterloo) viâ Petersfield. The quickest trains in either case take just over two hours and the single fare is 8/9½d.

From either station Dunford House can be reached by the footpath to Heyshott in 20 minutes. The distance by road is two miles. Taxis to meet trains can be ordered from "Sweet, Spread Eagle Hotel, Midhurst" (fare 4/-). A sketch map is given overleaf.

All requests for accommodation should be made to the Secretary, London School of Economics and Political Science, Clare Market, London, W.C.2. The admission of any visitor, whether belonging to the School or not, is in the discretion of the School authorities. A special Committee, including representatives of the staff and of the Students' Union, has been appointed to deal with questions as to Dunford House.

SKETCH MAP SHOWING DUNFORD HOUSE AND DISTRICT

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises some 500,000 items, including :—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

(d) A collection of some 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Mr. W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country from the seventeenth century.

EDWARD FRY LIBRARY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW.

A note on the acquisition of this collection appeared in the August, 1920, issue of the Bulletin, No. 11 (page 6).

The library will be available for reference to any serious student of the subject. As soon as funds allow a catalogue of the books will be printed. A special classification (set out below), founded on the scheme designed by the Library of Congress, has been devised by the Librarian of the London School of Economics, and adequate card catalogues and indexes will be available. The completeness of the library will depend largely upon the generosity of government departments, societies and private individuals interested in the subject. Donations of books, pamphlets and periodicals on any aspect of international law, as well as sums of money towards the maintenance of the library, will be cordially welcomed by the trustees, and should be sent to their secretary, Mr. B. M. Headicar, Librarian, London School of Economics, Clare Market, W.C.2, who will be glad to give any information and assistance to students.

BEAUTIFUL PRINTING

THE phrase "artistic printing" has become one to distrust. Not every man who possesses a stock of "ornaments" with which to besprinkle his pages knows what constitutes true art in printing. Yet many printers think the possession of the aforesaid "ornaments" gives them a claim to the title. ¶ For our own part we believe there is a "majesty in simplicity," and endeavour to obtain our effects simply. Adding good paper, good ink, and good workmanship to good taste keeps us ever rising in our profession. Books, Periodicals, Catalogues, Lists, and Multi-colour Work are continually executed by us to the satisfaction of our clients

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises some 500,000 items, including :—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

(d) A collection of some 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs.

Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Sir W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country from the seventeenth century.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises some 500,000 items, including :—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

(d) A collection of some 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs.

Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Sir W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country from the seventeenth century.

SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHIES, No. 15.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF SIR JOSIAH CHILD, Bart. (1630-1699).

By Miss E. S. Scroggs, Curator of the Pamphlet Collection.

Josiah Child was born in 1630, the second son of a London merchant, Richard Child. His early business was to supply stores of various kinds to the Royal Navy at Portsmouth, of which town he was at one time mayor. He is referred to as "victualler," "deputy treasurer of the fleet," "agent to the navy treasurer." He was M.P. for Petersfield, 1659 ; Dartmouth, 1673-8 ; Ludlow, 1685-7, and was made a baronet in 1678. He became a director of the East India Company in 1677, was deputy-governor 1684-6 and 1688-90 ; governor 1681-83 and 1686-88. His chief work, A new discourse of trade, wherein most of his lesser writings are included and in some cases amplified, upholds the principle of competition and free trade, advocates drastic restrictions in the rate of interest, and puts forward certain suggestions on unemployment and poor relief which have been adopted in subsequent generations.

The John Child who entered the service of the East India Company in 1659, and thereafter figures largely in its affairs, was not, as is often stated, a brother of Sir Josiah: his father was one Theophilus Child (v. Strachey, below).

The appended list of Sir Josiah Child's works includes separate publications of various portions of the Discourse of trade, a copy of the first complete edition of which is in the Library of the London School of Economics. All works in the list which are in the Library are marked with an asterisk (*). Copies of works not so marked will be gladly accepted.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises over 500,000 items, including :—

- (a) General works of reference, British and foreign.
- (b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.
- (c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.
- (d) A collection of over 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.
- (e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.
- (f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.
- (g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.
- (h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.
- (j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Prof. Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Walla made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Sir W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for and against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents, and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country, from the seventeenth century.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises over 500,000 items, including :—

- (a) General works of reference, British and foreign.
- (b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.
- (c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.
- (d) A collection of over 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.
- (e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.
- (f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.
- (g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.
- (h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.
- (j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.
- (k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs.

Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Sir W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country from the seventeenth century.

TRAVELLERS' DESCRIPTIONS OF GREAT BRITAIN.

By Sidney Webb, LL.B., Professor of Public Administration in the University of London.

The student of economic development or social institutions of the past three centuries in Great Britain may find his material in more authoritative sources, but he feels the need of contemporary accounts of "what it looked like." The local histories are usually unsatisfying. For occasional pregnant descriptions or graphic epithets he may dive into novels, plays, poems, and even sermons. But most useful are perhaps the unstudied descriptions of "things seen" by travellers. When my wife and I were seeking to discover the facts about workmen's combinations and English local government, particularly in the eighteenth century, we found all these sources useful. The lack of any convenient list of tours and journeys in Great Britain prevented our consulting more than a small proportion of the contemporary journals and diaries that exist. I have now compiled a list of more than a hundred such accounts of travel, printed or in manuscript, varying much in value, practically all of which are accessible in the British Museum. In the belief that such a list (doubtless very far from exhaustive) will be useful to other students, I place it at their disposal.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises over 500,000 items, including :—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

(d) A collection of over 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Sir W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country from the seventeenth century.

NEW DEPARTMENTS OF THE LIBRARY.

With the conclusion of the building operations at the London School of Economics has come the long looked for relief of the congestion in the general reading room. Three additional reading rooms have been provided, and the Library now possesses a special reading room for statistical books, another room has been set apart as a library of commerce, finance and transport, and a third for a history library and the Edward Fry Library of International Law. The new rooms are all well lighted, heated and ventilated, and readers should now be able to study in much greater comfort than it has been possible for them to do in the past. Incidentally also, the shelving accommodation in the book stores has been considerably eased and extra provision has been made in the extension of the building for book storage. As a result of these rearrangements the Library will not for a year or two suffer from that horrible ailment—cramp.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises over 500,000 items, including :—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

(d) A collection of over 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Sir W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country from the seventeenth century.

“ECONOMICA”

Journal of Studies

ISSUED BY THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS & POLITICAL SCIENCE

AT the beginning of the Session 1920-21, it was decided to start the publication of a new Journal of Studies, to which the title of “Economica” was given, which should embody the results of original research by members of the School staff, past and present students of the School, and any other articles of interest which might be submitted by other persons. The new journal is under the supervision of an editorial board consisting of Professors Edwin Cannan, Graham Wallas and A. L. Bowley; Dr. T. E. Gregory acts as Secretary. The publishers of “Economica” are Messrs. T. Fisher Unwin. The Journal appears three times a year, i.e. once every term, each number consisting of some 100 pages. The price is 2/6 per number, or 7/6 per annum post free.

Annual subscriptions should be sent to the publishers, Messrs. T. Fisher Unwin, 1, Adelphi Terrace, London, W.C. 2; all editorial communications should be addressed to—“Economica,” London School of Economics and Political Science (University of London), Houghton Street, Aldwych, W.C. 2.

Among the contributions to the first four numbers of “Economica” are the following:

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises over 500,000 items, including :—

- (a) General works of reference, British and foreign.
- (b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.
- (c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.
- (d) A collection of over 200,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.
- (e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.
- (f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.
- (g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.
- (h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.
- (j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.
- (k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs.

Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Sir W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country from the seventeenth century.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

THE Library was established by public subscription in 1896, for the free use of persons engaged in public administration, national and municipal, and of students of economics and political science. It comprises nearly 600,000 items, including :—

(a) General works of reference, British and foreign.

(b) Standard works, British and foreign, on economics and political science, including commerce and industry.

(c) A bibliographical section. This contains the catalogues of a large number of libraries (both general and special), readers' guides, general and subject bibliographies and reading lists. Also a large number of special bibliographies and lists of references prepared by the lecturers, library staff and students of the school. These are being constantly added to.

(d) A collection of some 250,000 pamphlets and similar materials for research, all classified in accordance with the general scheme.

(e) British parliamentary publications (blue books) from the end of the eighteenth century to date. These are not quite complete, the principal lacunæ being between 1865 and 1896.

(f) The official reports, bearing on administrative, constitutional and economic questions, of foreign government departments, and British colonies. The Library is greatly indebted to certain foreign governments for the manner in which they have presented practically complete sets of official documents not otherwise obtainable in the United Kingdom. The United States Government has made it a library of deposit for congressional documents in London, and has presented a set of documents since 1873 as complete as it is possible to make it. The same course has been taken by the governments of Australia, Canada, India, and South Africa.

(g) Official reports on municipal administration presented by more than 300 municipalities in the United Kingdom, the British colonies and dependencies, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, and other countries. No similar collection of municipal documents has been made in this or any other country.

(h) Other official papers, such as the reports of the North German Confederation and the German Reichstag from 1867.

(j) The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury have presented copies of the Chronicles and Memorials and of the Calendars of state papers and other publications of the Stationery Office.

(k) Special collections of material illustrating particular subjects or groups of subjects. These special collections are unique, for they have invariably been made by experts. The most valuable and extensive of them consists of the materials collected by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb for their History of trade unionism and Industrial democracy, and presented by them to the Library. Professor Borgeaud, of the University of Geneva, collected for the Library an extensive set of documents illustrating the working of the Referendum and the Initiative in Switzerland. Prof. Graham Wallas made a similar, but much more extensive collection, illustrating certain political problems of the United States, and during 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Webb, at the request of the Library Trustees, obtained, in addition to standard works, a large collection of official reports and documents, and other materials bearing upon public administration in the United States and the Australasian Colonies. In 1909 an extensive collection of similar material relating to Canada was obtained by Mr. McKillop during a visit to the Dominion.

(l) Manuscript and other collections bequeathed to the Library by the late Lord Farrer, Rev. Henry Solly, Mr. Charles Harrison, and others.

(m) Special Libraries which have been deposited with the London School of Economics for custody and administration—e.g., the collections of the Child Study Society, the Royal Economic Society, the Edward Fry Library of International Law, the South Eastern Union of Scientific Societies, and the World Conferences Library.

(n) Collections available for home reading by members, including those of the Students' Union, and Ratan Tata Department of Social Science.

(o) The Acworth transport collection, containing a large number of reports, textbooks, periodicals, etc., dealing with the administration and economics of railways, shipping, canals, roads, etc. This collection was begun out of funds given by the greater railway companies of this kingdom, and is constantly being added to. In 1910, Sir W. M. Acworth generously gave the greater part of his railway library, consisting of more than 5,000 items, to this collection, which is, in all probability, the most important library of transport literature in the United Kingdom.

(p) The Hutchinson collection of works in all languages for, against, and about socialism and allied questions. This collection has been acquired partly by gifts of books and other documents and partly by purchase from a fund provided by the trustees of the late Constance Hutchinson.

(q) There is also a fairly large collection of economic works in Japanese got together by Mr. Sidney Webb during his tour in the East, 1911.

(r) A large collection of books, pamphlets, periodicals, wholesale price lists, etc., relating to the tobacco industry of this country from the seventeenth century.

“ECONOMICA”

Journal of Studies

ISSUED BY THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS & POLITICAL SCIENCE

AT the beginning of the Session 1920-21, it was decided to start the publication of a new Journal of Studies, to which the title of “Economica” was given, which should embody the results of original research by members of the School staff, past and present students of the School, and any other articles of interest which might be submitted by other persons. The new journal is under the supervision of an editorial board consisting of Professors Edwin Cannan, Graham Wallas and A. L. Bowley; Dr. T. E. Gregory acts as Secretary. The publishers of “Economica” are Messrs. T. Fisher Unwin. The Journal appears three times a year, i.e. once every term, each number consisting of some 100 pages. The price is 2/6 per number, or 7/6 per annum post free.

Annual subscriptions should be sent to the publishers, Messrs. T. Fisher Unwin, 1, Adelphi Terrace, London, W.C. 2; all editorial communications should be addressed to—“Economica,” London School of Economics and Political Science (University of London), Houghton Street, Aldwych, W.C. 2.

Among the contributions to the first four numbers of “Economica” are the following:

Economics as a liberal education	The Director.
Bank deposits	Prof. Cannan.
The new international frontiers	E. W. Shanahan.
Foundations of industrial welfare	Miss Kelly & Miss Has-

The London School of Economics & Political Science

(UNIVERSITY OF LONDON)

HOUGHTON STREET, ALDWYCH, W.C. 2

1. FACULTIES AND COURSES.—The School provides instruction in the Faculties of Economics, Laws, Arts and Science. It registers students for the degrees of B.Sc. (Econ.), B.Com. LL.B., and B.A. with Honours in Geography and Sociology, and offers special facilities for research to students proceeding to the degrees of M.Sc. (Econ.), D.Sc. (Econ.), LL.D., D.Lit., Ph.D., and M.Sc. in Anthropology. It also provides courses for the Academic Diplomas in (i) Geography, (ii) Sociology and Social Science (in conjunction with the Ratan Tata Department), (iii) Journalism (in conjunction with other institutions of the University). The lectures and classes are open also to those who have not matriculated and do not wish to pursue a full University course.
2. EVENING STUDENTS.—One of the main features of the School is the provision of evening courses by the same teachers as lecture during the day. Complete evening as well as day courses are provided for the degrees of B.Sc. (Econ.) and B.Com.
3. FACILITIES FOR RESEARCH.—The School is one of the largest centres of “post graduate” study in the United Kingdom. The work of the Research Department is carried on by means of (i) individual supervision of students, (ii) Seminars or special classes, and (iii) the Library. The method of utilising the British Museum, the Public Record Office, etc., is explained.

BEAUTIFUL PRINTING

THE phrase "artistic printing" has become one to distrust. Not every man who possesses a stock of "ornaments" with which to besprinkle his pages knows what constitutes true art in printing. Yet many printers think the possession of the aforesaid "ornaments" gives them a claim to the title. ¶ For our own part we believe there is a "majesty in simplicity," and endeavour to obtain our effects simply. Adding good paper, good ink, and good workmanship to good taste keeps us ever rising in our profession. Books, Periodicals, Catalogues, Lists, and Multi-colour Work are continually executed by us to the satisfaction of our clients
